Gary Wingert, '01 grad, received the Army Achievement Medal for being the Distinguished Honor Graduate in the Apache Longbow course, placing first in his class. He also graduated with honors from flight school, placing fifth in his class.

Michael Moore, '98 grad, successfully completed the requirements for the doctor of philosophy degree in music education from the University of South Carolina.

Megan McCauley, '03 grad, was the district winner and a regional finalist in the 2005 Metropolitan Opera National Council Auditions. In addition, she sang the role of Hermione in the first Italian operatic adaptation of Shakespeare's The Winter's Tale, produced by the International Opera Theater, performed at Teatro Avvaloranti in Citta della Pieve, Italy.

Jeremiah Dew, senior mass media major, and Matthew Slocum, senior computer science major, won third place in the video category of the Broadcast Education Association's Student Media Arts Competition for their WBJU-TV news story about the production "The Curious Savage."

David DiCanio, '93 M.Div. grad, received a Silver Telly Award, the highest honor given for TV commercials and programs, for his 62-minute television documentary, "Mission to Africa: the Story of Five Free Presbyterian Missionaries."

The following students won first place at the National Educational Debate Association's year-end championship tournament: Megan Von Bergen, sophomore english major, and Amos Tang, junior prelaw major, in the novice division; and David Raab, '05 comprehensive business management grad, and Randy Melchert, senior Bible major, in the open division. Randy Melchert also won a speaker award in the open division.

New Majors at BJU

Communication Disorders

Classroom instruction, clinical observations, written assignments, and client interaction are carefully planned to ensure that the student is prepared for graduate work in speech-language pathology. Course content covers the broad scope of normal speech and language development and disorders and provides an adequate base of math, science, and psychology for entrance into a master's program.

Dramatic Production

This major provides training in all phases of play production, including stage directing, performance, and theatrical design. In addition to classroom instruction, the program strongly emphasizes participation in departmental production activity as well as ministry-oriented projects in local churches and Christian schools.

Speech Pedagogy

This major prepares students for careers in teaching speech and drama in the Christian school, in the church, in business, and other organizational contexts, as well as on the mission field. The program is general by design and reflects a balance between theory and practice. Study in the division's four major disciplines is required—rhetoric and public address, oral interpretation, dramatic production, and communication studies—and is designed to prepare the graduate to teach basic communication skills and concepts in a variety of contexts and with multiple applications.

The COLLEGIAN

BOB JONES UNIVERSITY

The Collegian is BJU's award-winning student newspaper published 25 times a year, September through June. The following excerpt is from the April 28, 2005, issue.

President Stepping Down

Dr. Bob said he wants the students to think of him as "somebody who loves them, feels immensely privileged to invest in their lives, to be remembered as somebody who can't imagine himself ever doing anything else. "Certainly could've never done anything else that would have been as immensely personally rewarding."

"I feel like I have thousands of children all over the world." And now he plans on spending more time visiting and encouraging many of them. Many of Dr. Bob's "adopted" children feel the same way about him. Miss Rebecca Sykes, a graduate assistant studying personnel services, said, "He's like a father figure in some ways. He has a caring personality. He cares about the students, he cares about the school, but he also has a big burden for the lost. And you can tell that he loves the Lord."

"I think he's so comfortable with students," said Isaiah Stratton, who got to know Dr. Bob when they had leading roles in Cyrano de Bergerac. "Maybe a lot of people don't see him this way, but he seems very approachable. When you're talking to him, it's amazing how much he remembers about you. He takes the time to find out about you."

Dr. Bob has spent his life at BJU. Born in Cleveland, Tenn., on one of BJU's former campuses, Dr. Bob went all the way up through the academy and university. He became president at 32, three years younger than Dr. Stephen Jones was when he took over. And Dr. Bob saw the school through an amazing period of growth, both in size and in academics.

The school and Dr. Bob have weathered many battles throughout his years as president—first with the courts when BJU lost its tax-exempt status, and then with the media following then-Gov. George Bush's controversial visit to BJU during the 2000 election. Dealing with the media is at the top of the list of duties he will gladly pass along to others. "They were scary moments. They were something you did out of necessity, but with thanksgiving to God for giving me the opportunity to present the truth," Dr. Bob said.

Dr. Bob will continue to serve, not sitting on the front porch but moving on to serve God in a new role. And keeping busy with every passing day.

a day in the life of a Senior (well sort of...)

You may remember our Spring 2003 feature story on life as a freshman. College is an exciting time of life for freshmen, but it is especially so for seniors. So we thought we'd follow up with an article on exactly what it's like to be a college senior.

Melyssa Kuntz Harris, an '05 administrative management grad, gave us the inside scoop about life as a senior at BJU. (For all of you math buffs, we know this doesn't add up to four years. Melyssa was able to graduate a year early with the help of summer school and correspondence courses.)

September 3

My senior year. . . I like the sound of that! So many privileges, yet so much responsibility. The start of this year has been pretty crazy so far. Fortunately, seniors got to register on Saturday afternoon this year, so that was great! By Saturday night, I had registered and ordered most of my books. But even with those two things out of the way, there was still lots to do—like registering my car, attending opening meetings, and meeting with the other University Business Association (UBA) council members.

I'm involved in a lot more this year than I was as a freshman. As far as extracurriculars go, I'm on the UBA's executive council, and this year I'm the coach of my basketball team for society, the Cardinals. The UBA is BJU's business association. It gives the students (particularly business students, but students from any majors can join) opportunities to hear professionals from the business world speak in forums throughout the year. They speak on topics such as what it's like to be a Christian in today's business world or how to increase your hireability. Outside of school, I'm working off campus and planning a wedding for July 16th. But for right now, I'm just trying to enjoy the first couple of days of classes and especially society rush. And this time, I get to be one of the ones rushing new freshmen to encourage them to join my society.

September 5

Wow, induction night was crazy! Since our society already had 85 members before rush, we figured we'd just be ourselves and have fun during rush and not kill ourselves trying to get everyone to join. We ended up with 60 great girls who decided to become our society sisters. We had a great time and enjoyed all the food and fellowship.

September 22

Tonight was the senior picnic and tour of Dr. Bob and Mrs. Jones' home. I got there with my best friend, Mandy, just on time because we were picking up my wedding dress! Oh yeah, back to the picnic. My fiancé and I went through the food line, which included fried chicken, ham sandwiches, an apple and fruit jello, some carrot sticks and other veggies with dip, and some punch. Then we set our things down and got in line to get a picture with Dr. Bob and Mrs. Jones. They were very nice and said they were happy to see us. After dinner, we took the tour through their house. It has tons of art work and other interesting décor. The whole time, I tried to imagine getting my house clean enough to let hundreds of people walk through it, looking at every detail. I have a hard enough time with my own room! All in all, it was a lot of fun and a great experience to remember.

November 22

The week of the long-awaited Thanksgiving break! This is the first year that BJU has dismissed classes during Thanksgiving. We had the annual Turkey Bowl this past Saturday, and we won't have classes Wednesday, Friday, and Monday so we can be with our families for Thanksgiving. My fiancé, Kendall, and I are leaving right after our last class tomorrow. I can hardly wait!

As far as basketball season goes, that's nearly over, with only the championship games left to play. We'll be playing the Pirates in the playoffs the week after Thanksgiving, so it should be a good game.

Since we're at Thanksgiving week, that means that the semester is almost over. . . it's so hard to believe! It really seems as if we just started a few weeks ago. But that's probably because this semester has been harder than most others. My schedule seems to be synchronized so that the tests and quizzes and projects are all due on the same day. . . and that doesn't make for an easy semester, but it makes for a fast one, for sure! Well, better go pack for break!

Myra Mooney, interior design grad from Trinity, Ala.

My education at BJU has not only prepared me academically but has also prepared me to work with a diverse range of people, whether communicating with them, problem-solving with them, learning from them, or leading them.

During the summer of 2004 I participated in an internship in the corporate investigations departments for The Bank of America and for The South Financial Group. This gave me an opportunity to experience firsthand what I had learned about in the classroom.

Micah Coston, church music grad from Hope, Mich.

At BJU, instruction in the Word of God is not only the foundation but also the very fiber of each class, generating a reworking of the entire person.

November 30

Well, basketball season is over. It always seems to fly by after the first game. We ended up second place in our league, which I thought was great. Last year, our team was mostly seniors, so we were a little worried at the start of this season with only three former players returning. But we got seven talented and fun freshmen who made my job as coach pretty easy. My goal for the team was to build a strong base of unity and teamwork for those seven freshmen and one junior who will make up the majority of the team next year. It was such a great learning experience for me in how to encourage and motivate people to work together.

Alicia Holly Westcott, creative writing grad from Moravia, N.Y.

My classes have stretched me further than I ever dreamed I could be stretched. My teachers continually showed me how I could improve, and they encouraged me to go beyond what I thought I could do.

December 14

Mid exam week!!! Why does it always seem that there's no will to study when you're right in the middle of exam week?

December 16

Christmas break . . . exams over . . . need I say more???

January 13

First day back to classes. It always seems harder to start the second semester, especially if you've taken a correspondence course over Christmas break (like I did this year). But everything seems to be off to a good start this semester. Taking some interesting classes like Modern Cults and Clinical Psychology. I'll have to see if they're still interesting in a few months. =)

Christina O'Shaughnessey, premed grad from Midland, Mich.

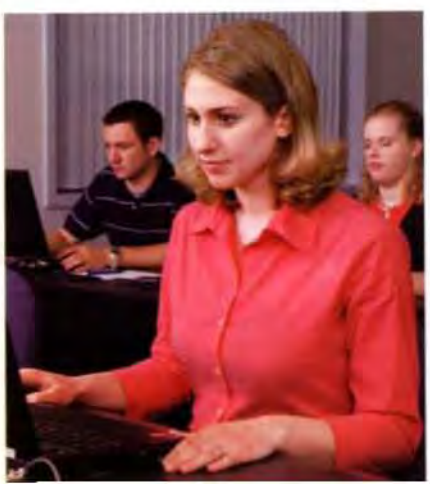
I was president of the Beta Chi Omega society and loved interacting with the girls in my society. They truly have influenced me in a way only special friends can. The godly encouragement and advice that I have received from them has helped me realize how much the Lord truly has blessed me.



February 17

Day of Prayer today. Probably one of the best ones since I've been a student, except maybe the one last semester before the election. This time we focused a lot on summer mission teams. Now that I've been here awhile and know more people, it was cool to be able to pray for friends in a specific, directed way with others from the student body. It was a relaxing and yet profitable day. A good last Day of Prayer for me as a student here.

February 26

Today was my dating outing with my society, the theme — "Mad Hatter's Tea Party." So we did a bunch of crazy games having to do with "Alice in Wonderland." One of them was croquet, which was fun since I've never played before. They also had a picture area set up with Tweedle Dee and Tweedle Dum cut-outs. That was pretty funny. For dinner, we had three different "courses," and we all had to change tables before we ate each course—which made it interesting. But it was a great last dating outing, and I got to make some more memories with my friends and my fiancé.

March 17

Gold Rush Daze—no classes, but games, competitions, and a special faculty presentation. It happens only once every four years, so it was pretty cool to be involved my senior year. The student body is divided into two teams (red & blue), and they decorated the residence halls (inside and out) according to the team color. It was pretty cold outside, but the games were fun. However, the best part of the whole day was the "faculty body" that night—a bunch of skits and spoofs off of different things that go on around campus. It was the most hilarious thing I have seen in a long time, and we all laughed so hard the whole time! It was great!

April 29

I picked up my regalia today! I went through the line and got my tassel and my cap and gown. I had to try on a few gowns to get the right length, but otherwise I was in and out in no time! It feels great to have a cap and gown hanging in my closet and to know that they're mine . . . well, at least until next Saturday.

May 6

After the Awards chapel this morning, we had graduation rehearsal. It was pretty cool sitting in the FMA with only other graduates there. We practiced walking in and out of the FMA a few times and other things that go along with graduating from college. All this was basically so that we all don't mess up tomorrow. It was fun though. Can't wait for the real day tomorrow!!!

May 7

I'M A GRADUATE!!!!!! It's so hard to believe that my whole college education is over! Today was graduation, and it was awesome! It really was a lot of fun being part of such a large graduating class. I was a little nervous that I would do something really embarrassing, like trip on stage or knock my hat off, but nothing happened, which was a relief. :) And then of course there was the changing of the administration— Dr. Bob stepping down and Dr. Stephen Jones becoming president. It was quite an honor to be the last class whose degrees were conferred by Dr. Bob and to be able to be a part of the investiture ceremony for Dr. Stephen Jones. It was an awesome experience! I'd almost say I'd like to do it again, but . . . I don't think so.

Here is the eighth in a series of faculty spotlights, giving you a sneak peek behind the scenes at just a few of our many faculty members.

Yep - faculty are real people too!

FACU

April Schwingle

Art faculty

5 years teaching at BJU

Classes include Ceramics I, II, and III

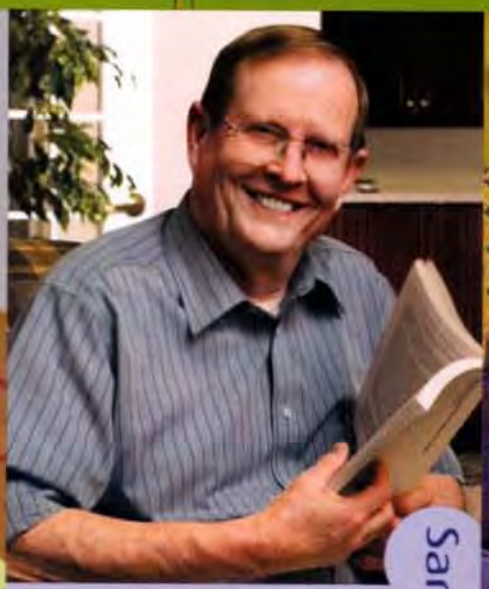
"I love playing in mud every day! I also really enjoy getting to know each student on a personal level. We get to know each other pretty well, and that helps tremendously when you are trying to minister to the students."

Field of Study
Favorite type of "clay": Stoneware, like "Orangestone."
What can you learn from clay? How much we are like clay!
Biggest project you've done: 100 vases for the Greenville Convention and Visitors Bureau, I threw them all in one day—13 hours straight!

Degrees
B.S. Graphic Design, '00, and M.A. Studio Art, '03, BJU

Family Background
Originally from Corinth, Miss.
Husband: David; Cat: Hermie

Personal
What did you want to be when you grew up? A missionary to Africa.
Most embarrassing college memory: Falling over backwards in my chair on a date in the snack shop my freshman year
Favorite book of the Bible: Philippians
Interesting hobby: Racquetball



Sam Schnaiter

Ancient Language Department Head and New Testament Language & Literature faculty

30 years teaching at BJU

Classes include Matthew in Greek, Biblical Themes, Problems of New Testament Interpretation, Septuagint

"I have increasingly come to appreciate what a blessing it is to teach in a thoroughly biblical atmosphere, free from the shackles of political 'correctness' that harness good teaching in most secular institutions."

Field of Study
Favorite passage of Scripture: Psalm 23
Favorite Bible character: Peter, because he so quintessentially models the struggling and eventually victorious disciple

Degrees
B.A. Humanities, '66; M.A. Bible, '68; and Ph.D. New Testament Text, '80, BJU

Family Background
Originally from Martinsville, Ind.
Wife: Marilyn; Children: Stephan (33), Jonathan (31), Lisa Marie (26), Michael (24)

Personal
Favorite season: The fall—beautiful colors, pleasant temperatures, minimal allergies
Favorite book of the Bible: John
What do you do when you're bored? Pleasure reading during the only boring times, like in doctors' or dentists' waiting rooms
Interesting hobby: Amateur radio, although I have less time to spend with it now

Angela Belnea

Family & Consumer Sciences faculty

3 years teaching at BJU

Classes include Medical Nutrition Therapy, Nutrient Metabolism, Food Science

"Nowhere will you find students who want to learn more than here. After being in different academic settings as a student, I feel that we accomplish more at BJU because our students are ready to learn."

Field of Study
Favorite nutritional advice: All foods fit!
Favorite food: Sugar-free Jello—only 10 calories before whipped cream.
Nutrition fact people don't know: A 20-oz. Coke and a honeybun have the same number of calories.

Degrees
B.S. Foods and Nutrition, '01, BJU; M.S. Food, Nutrition, & Culinary Science, in progress, Clemson University

Family Background
Originally from Ellicott City, Md.
Husband: Sam

Personal

What do you do when you're bored? Sit on the sofa and watch old musicals

TY spotLIGHT

Jeff Stegall

Speech faculty and costume/ scene designer

17 years teaching at BJU

Classes include Acting, Costume Design, Scene Design, Performing Shakespeare

"I know this is where God wants me, and as a Christian in theater arts, I consider this to be the pinnacle of my profession."

Field of Study
How many plays have you directed? 20+ plays and operas
Which was your favorite? The 1997 Hamlet has to be one of my favorites. The whole creative team—actors and artists—worked so well together to accomplish a common goal.

Degrees
B.S. Bible/Fine Arts, '84, Free Will Baptist Bible College; M.A. Oral Interpretation, '87, BJU; Acting Certificate, '91, National Shakespeare Conservatory

Family Background
Originally from South Roxana, Ill.
Wife: Kim; Children: Margaret (10) and Cole (8)

Personal
What did you want to be when you grew up? I think I was destined to be a costume designer. I would draw costumed figures on the wall of my dad's garage. And my grandma would sit me at a sewing machine and have me sew paper towels together—probably just to keep me out of her way.
Favorite color: Orange
Favorite book of the Bible: Colossians

Chris Martin

English faculty

15 years teaching at BJU

Classes include Introduction to Literature and Writing, Chaucer, History of the English Language

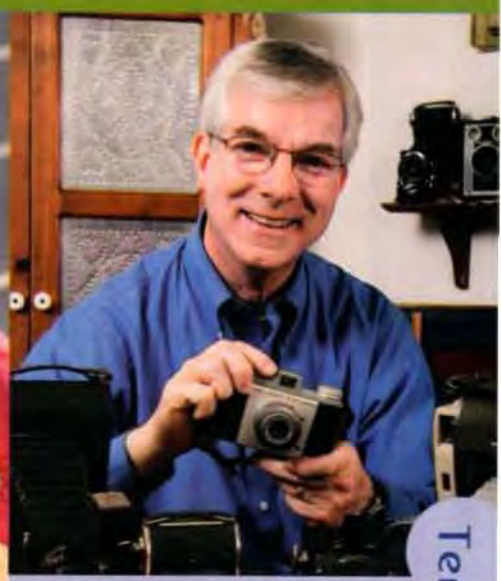
"I love teaching students who want to serve the Lord. There's a biblical framework here, and we have the opportunity to think clearly about important issues."

Field of Study
Favorite part of speech: I'm not a respecter of parts of speech.
What makes English unique? It's a sponge for vocabulary from languages all over the world.

Degrees
B.A. Piano Performance, '83, and M.Ed. English, '84, BJU; M.A. English Literature, '94, Virginia Tech; Ph.D. Linguistics, '04, University of Georgia

Family Background
Originally from Orange, N.J.
Husband: Kris; Children: Tory (15), Spencer (11), Bailey (7)

Personal
What did you want to be when you grew up? Something different every year—for a while, I wanted to be a jockey.
Favorite time of the year: Snow time
Favorite book of the Bible: Kings
What do you do when you're bored? Eat chocolate
Interesting hobby: Chocolate expert. (I also run, but that's pretty much so I can eat chocolate.)



Terry Davenport

Cinema faculty and Art Director, Unusual Films

29 years teaching at BJU

Classes include Scenic Design and Makeup for Cinema and Video Production

"I believe BJU has the best philosophy and practical application of film and video production training anywhere in the world. To be a part of that makes my job a joy rather than a chore."

Field of Study
Favorite part of filmmaking: Making a film set look realistically old, cluttered, dirty, and well...just plain lived-in Most interesting project: The Printing—Shooting night snow scenes in a northern Wisconsin winter at 50 below and later shooting a faux snow scene on a Greenville city street on a sunny day in July.

Degrees
B.A. Creative Studies (Art/Music), '70, Grace College in Indiana; M.A. Cinema and Video Production, '75, BJU

Family Background
Originally from Canton, Ohio
Wife: Peggy; Children: Jennifer (20), Heather (19), Daniel (15)

Personal
What did you want to be when you grew up? Newspaper cartoonist, because I loved to draw Peanuts characters
Favorite book of the Bible: Psalms
Where do you go to be alone? A little woodworking shop in my backyard
Interesting hobby: Collecting old cameras stepping UP.

An administrative transition

Four new administrators have been busy learning the details of their new positions at BJU. The changes in leadership have come because of the retirement of two long-term administrators, Dr. Bob Wood and Dr. Phil Smith, the transition of Dr. Bob Jones III from president to chancellor, and the election of Dr. Stephen Jones as president. Thinking of filling the roles left by these men would be daunting for anyone. But it's clear that God is preparing a new generation to carry on the work of those who've gone before.

Family: wife, Jonna; a son, Josh, 26, and two daughters, Ashleigh, 24, and Bethany, 21.
Hometown: born in Monterey, Calif.; since his dad was in the Navy, Al moved frequently as a child, living in Long Beach, Los Angeles, San Francisco, San Diego, and Yokohama, Japan
Church: Trinity Bible Church
Hobbies: studying history and working in the yard

Mr. Alan Carper said he'll be drawing on his background in business, teaching, and the military to help him in his new role as executive vice president and chief operations officer, the position held by Dr. Bob Wood for 29 years. Mr. Carper began his business career in marketing after graduating from BJU in 1977, the same year Dr. Wood was named vice president.

Mr. Carper holds an MBA from the McColl School of Business, Queens College, in Charlotte, N.C. He has taught in BJU's School of Business Administration since 1983, including courses in money and banking, corporate finance, financial theory, investment portfolio management, logistics management, management policies, and macroeconomics.

In January 2003, after 14 years as an officer in the Supply Corps of the U.S. Naval Reserve, Mr. Carper was mobilized for active duty and for two years served as the commanding officer for the Navy's mobilization processing site in Norfolk, Va.

"I led the staff that processed thousands of reservists being mobilized to and demobilized from the Middle East in support of the global war on terror," Mr. Carper said. He was also responsible for managing the medical care of hundreds of wounded reservists returning to the United States.

"As chief operations officer at BJU, I'll be responsible for several overall operational areas: finance, information technology, BJU Press, facilities managment, human resources, and ancillary services," Mr. Carper said. "Dr. Wood and I have spent countless hours together discussing virtually every aspect of the university's business. We constantly go to the Bible to see what God's Word has to say about each decision."

Family: wife, Rachel; a daughter, Lorna, 24, and two sons, Doug, 23, and Ryan, 21.
Hometown: Greenville
Church: Faith Free Presbyterian Church, where he sings in the choir
Other activities: frequent speaker at Christian school conventions

Family: wife, Rebecca; three daughters, Laura Beth, 11, Emily, 10, and Elise, 5; and one son, Andrew, 6.
Hometown: born in Elmhurst, Ill.
Church: Morningside Baptist Church, where he is a deacon and promotions director
Hobbies: politics, baseball (particularly the Chicago Cubs), golf, barbecuing

Dr. Gary Weier has been named vice president for administration and chief administrative oversight officer, the position held by Dr. Stephen Jones before being named BJU's new president. Dr. Weier began his teaching career at BJU as a graduate assistant in the Division of Speech Communication in 1988. He joined the faculty full-time in 1990, teaching speech and eventually heading the department of rhetoric and public address. Before assuming his new position, Dr. Weier served for three years as university registrar. He holds a B.S. and an M.A. from BJU and a Ph.D. from Purdue University.

"Sitting under the influence of so many godly teachers, mentors, and colleagues here at BJU has prepared me more than anything else for this new role," Dr. Weier said. "My goal is to learn all I can from those God has placed around me and to help BJU continually improve its ability to fulfill its mission of developing Christlike character in Christian young people."

Dr. Weier will oversee the administrators responsible for BJU's academics, student life, admissions, student recruitment and financial aid, and marketing and communication.

Dr. David Fisher moves from the role of principal of Bob Jones Academy to his new position as university provost, where he will oversee the entire academic spectrum from K4 through graduate school, including the distance learning programs of BJU. The choice of Dr. Fisher seems especially appropriate when you consider his background.

"I attended BJ schools from preschool to kindergarten, through junior high, high school, college, and graduate school—literally from the nursery to receiving a Ph.D.," Dr. Fisher said.

In preparation for his new role, Dr. Fisher has been meeting regularly with Dr. Phil Smith, who retired as university provost after 24 years in that position. "He has helped outline my responsibilities and explain the philosophy behind the decisions that are made in this office," Dr. Fisher said.

"The educational philosophy of Bob Jones University has been ingrained in me through the lives of the faculty and their teaching in the classroom. I believe this heritage gives me a strong foundation from which to maintain the spiritual and academic philosophy of the school."

As Mr. Alfredo Deambrosi assumes the role of university registrar, he has the luxury of consulting with four former registrars who are still on campus. Dr. Weier, whom Mr. Deambrosi follows into the position, as well as Dr. Dan Smith, Dr. Phil Smith, and Dr. Jim Deuink have all been university registrar in past years.

"I'll also be drawing on my experience as a teacher and from being here at the university earning three degrees," Mr. Deambrosi said. He holds a B.S. and an M.Ed. in English from BJU and an M.A. in theology from the Bob Jones Jr. Memorial Seminary.

Family: wife, Holly
Hometown: Strausstown, Pa.
Church: Trinity Baptist Church in Gaffney, S.C., where he is the children's church director and teacher and occasionally preaches in the evening service
Hobbies: in-line skating, playing the guitar, watching and playing baseball, and learning languages

One of Mr. Deambrosi's biggest projects as registrar will be directing the switch to complete online registration, a change that has been in the works for several years. Other duties of the registrar include scheduling classes, processing grades, maintaining academic records, and processing transcripts.

"I look forward to talking to, encouraging, and motivating students who may be having difficulty meeting the requirements for graduation," Mr. Deambrosi said. "I will encourage them to do what God has called them to do."

What Matters Most

Last week I spent time at the funerals of two godly men. Both died unexpectedly, and both left behind a legacy of love for the Lord. I had stood in ICU at the bedside of one of the men just moments prior to his homegoing. There in the hospital with him and again at the funeral, it struck me how few things matter when one approaches the end of earthly life. At that time, possessions, accomplishments, and titles melt away into meaninglessness. When one is standing on the brink of eternity, the only item of importance is that individual's personal standing with the God of eternity.

That's a very difficult perspective to maintain in the workaday (or even "minister-a-day") world. And if it's hard for those of us who've had years to experience the emptiness of every pursuit other than Christ, it's triply hard for the young people who sit in our classrooms and look at the world and culture before them through less seasoned eyes.

Christian education, if it truly deserves the name, must lead the student beyond the natural thirst for success or achievement to the thing that matters most: that student's relationship with God. There may be no more poignant phrasing of that urgency than the cry of Asaph's heart: "Whom have I in heaven but thee? and there is none upon earth that I desire beside thee" (Psalm 73:25).

That's the core goal we have for each student at Bob Jones University—that every experience, lesson, and encounter here would make that student thirsty for God above all else, satisfied with God in place of all else, and sold out for God despite all else.

He is what matters most in life! —Stephen Jones

Seminary rotunda—Sunlight streams through a large skylight positioned almost 40 feet above the main floor of the seminary rotunda. The area features 11 stained glass windows and a 20-foot mural. Flat-screen computer presentations are scattered throughout the rotunda, and more than 40 oak display cases house memorabilia.

BJU Campus Store—Customers can wander through the spacious aisles of merchandise and peruse up to 14,000 items, more than half of them books—fiction and nonfiction as well as textbooks.

University pool in the Davis Field House—A seven-lane, 3,750-square-foot pool—ranging in depth from four feet to ten feet—provides a great space for both water sports and aerobic swimming.

Mack Library—The library, with its lighted, curved window at the entrance, is a beautiful sight each evening and a popular destination for students looking for a quiet place to study. Open stacks housing more than 297,000 volumes help students meet a variety of academic requirements.

"I'd give my right arm to have a stadium like this!"

Most people around Greenville recognize Paul Wright's ('69) voice from WMUU, a BJU-founded radio station, where he is general manager and an announcer. But few know about some of his other talents and the many ways he is involved in the Greenville community and beyond.

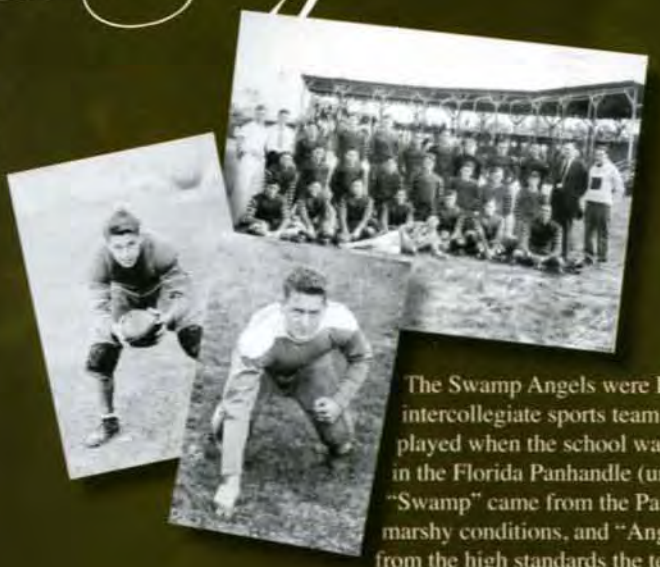
For almost 30 years, Mr. Wright has been a soccer referee. "I worked the NCAA Tournament for 15 straight years, including refereeing eight national championships for three different athletic organizations," Mr. Wright says. Recently, Mr. Wright was honored for his work as a referee. "It was early in the summer that I received a call telling me that I was to be inducted into two halls of fame—at the National Intercollegiate Soccer Officials Association's National Convention in Missoula, Mont., in July and at the National Soccer Hall of Fame in Oneonta, N.Y., in August."

Mr. Wright uses his radio and television degree and his experience to benefit the community in other ways as well. "This is the 11th year I have contracted with BJU's TV Productions to produce rules change videos for the NCAA and the National Federation of High Schools," Mr. Wright says. Each year the NCAA and NFHS rules committees examine and change soccer rules governing the sport. "All the taping is done in the Greenville area, and all of the coaches' recording sessions are done on the BJU campus. "We've had coaches from Notre Dame, Brown University, Seattle Pacific University, and UCLA, to name a few."

A few years ago, when he was coaching for UCLA, Sigi Schmid was the chairman of the rules committee and came to BJU to shoot his portion of the video. "I showed him around, and when Sigi saw the Alumni Stadium, he wanted to know more about our program," Mr. Wright says. "He told me it was one of the nicest soccer facilities he had ever seen and that he would 'give his right arm' to have a stadium like ours!"

Mr. Paul Wright has had quite an impact on the Greenville community and the Upstate because of his varied talents and interests. "It's nice to be recognized after nearly 30 years of refereeing. I'm now retired and am glad I was able to bid farewell to the many coaches I've worked with these many years. If nothing else, the grandkids will have a place to go visit."

Swamp Angels



The Swamp Angels were BJU's intercollegiate sports team that played when the school was located in the Florida Panhandle (until 1933). "Swamp" came from the Panhandle's marshy conditions, and "Angels" came from the high standards the team kept.

Major

Early Childhood Education

overview

The early childhood education major prepares students for teaching in pre-kindergarten and the lower elementary grades. It focuses on producing concerned and clear-thinking teachers and develops their ability to generate fresh, original lessons.

current student

Noah Stratton, junior from Lima, Ohio
"I have really enjoyed the Teaching Language Arts/Social Studies class. I've learned so much, not only about language and history but also about how to properly teach young children this important information."

sample classes

- Early Childhood Curriculum
- Teaching Mathematics & Science
- Teaching Reading
- Directed Teaching

graduates

Anne McWethy, '03 grad
2nd-grade teacher, Lake Orion Baptist School in Lake Orion, Mich.

Jessica Stephan, '04 grad
K4 teacher, Brushy Creek Elementary School in Taylors, S.C.

Jessica Gibson Coon, '02 grad
Assistant Director, KinderCare Learning Center in Dearborn, Mich.

Related majors include elementary education, middle school education—language arts/social studies, and middle school education—mathematics/science

Foods & Nutrition

overview

The foods and nutrition major prepares students for ministry in a variety of foods-related occupations. The composite science minor provides mastery of both biological and chemical sciences. Graduates can pursue careers in nutrition education, food service, research, counseling, catering, and event planning. Graduates may later choose to complete an American Dietetics Association-approved internship program and eventually pursue certification as a registered dietitian.

current student

Calah Driggers, junior from Whiteville, N.C.
"My favorite class was nutrition. I learned a lot about the body's nutritional needs and how our bodies utilize nutrients."

sample classes

- Medical Nutrition Therapy I and II
- Community Nutrition

Focus

BJU offers 128 different majors, so many that you're probably unfamiliar with a good number of them. Each issue of the Review will feature a quick glance at four majors in this Major Focus feature.

▲ Counseling

overview

The counseling major provides preparation for service in Christian counseling and social work. It offers instruction in philosophy, psychology, professional education, and communication. The required equivalent to a Bible minor establishes the appropriate foundation and perspective for the program, which also prepares students for graduate study in psychology or counseling.

current student

Hannah Gfeller, junior from Greenville, S.C.
"My adolescent psychology class was great. The teacher is very friendly and informative, and the lessons are practical for future use."

sample classes

- Practice of Counseling
- Biblical Church Ministry
